

The Cosmic Pyramid Scheme: Lunar Astro's MLM Model

A FINANCIAL EXPOSE BY THE DIGITAL CONSUMER WATCHDOG GROUP

If you strip away the Sanskrit terminology, the planetary charts, and the spiritual aesthetics, Lunar Astro is not an educational academy. It operates on the exact same financial mechanics as a Multi-Level Marketing (MLM) Pyramid Scheme.

The Anatomy of the Pyramid

1. The Massive Buy-In: Just like Amway or Herbalife, you cannot enter the ecosystem without paying a massive upfront fee. In this case, it is ₹2 Lakhs for "Advanced Courses" containing rebranded library books.

2. The Illusion of Business Ownership: MLM victims are told they are "business owners." Lunar Astro students are told they are "master astrologers." But in reality, neither owns anything. The Lunar Astro graduate is stripped of their name, branded as "Code 5007," and forced to work exclusively for the Guru's panel, handing over the vast majority of their revenue to the top of the pyramid.

3. The Recruitment Drive (Fake Reviews): The lifeblood of a pyramid scheme is new recruits. Lunar Astro forces its students to act as unpaid recruiters. By making 5-star Trustpilot and Quora reviews mandatory "homework," the students at the bottom of the pyramid are forced to lure new victims into the funnel to enrich the Guru at the top.

You are not paying for an education. You are paying an entry fee to become the bottom layer of Deepanshu Giri's financial pyramid.

When the only career path a school offers is working for the school itself under a fake name, it is not a school. It is a scam.
