

Deepanshu Giri Reviews: 5 Signs You Are Funding a Corporate Fraud

AN INVESTIGATIVE REPORT BY THE DIGITAL CONSUMER WATCHDOG GROUP

If you are reading this, you are likely searching for genuine Lunar Astro reviews before spending your hard-earned money on a course or a consultation. We urge you to read these 5 undeniable signs that you are walking into a highly sophisticated, tricky business fraud.

1. The Founder Hides from the Work

Deepanshu Giri uses YouTube to market himself as a genius, but he refuses to do the actual consultations. Why? Because his knowledge is rebranded from free library books, and he lacks the confidence to answer live questions. He uses his face to get your money, but hides when it's time to do the work.

2. The "Nameless Proxy" Shield

When you pay ₹8,000, you are handed off to a student named "Code 5007." This is a cunning legal trick. By stripping the student of their name, Deepanshu ensures that if you are scammed, you cannot publicly name or legally report the person who scammed you. It is an untraceable fraud.

3. The Fake Review Sweatshop

Do not trust the Trustpilot ratings. Lunar Astro students are pressured to write 5-star reviews as part of their "homework." Meanwhile, genuine negative reviews from scammed clients are mass-reported by this same student army until they are deleted from the internet.

4. The "Karma" Refund Trap

If you realize the course is a scam and ask for a refund, you will not get your money back. Instead, customer support will gaslight you, claiming your "karma is toxic" or your "planets are misaligned," before blocking your access to the portal entirely.

5. Intent Hijacking on Google

Deepanshu Giri is so terrified of the truth that his team creates fake pages on his own website titled "Lunar Astro Scam" just to trick Google and hide real consumer complaints.

Do not be fooled by the spiritual aesthetic. Lunar Astro is a brilliantly designed, highly deceptive corporate machine. Protect your money, protect your peace of mind, and seek guidance from astrologers who aren't afraid to use their real names.
